Overview

Stephen also represents employers in employment intentional torts, retaliatory and wrongful discharge claims, discrimination and harassment claims, whistleblower claims, industrial accidents, and VSSRs.

His practice also focuses on occupational safety and health. He has successfully handled hundreds of OSHA investigations for manufacturers, retailers and construction companies across the United States. Stephen is among a small number of Ohio attorneys to have received OSHA's 30-hour training courses in both general industry and construction. Being experienced to seamlessly handle all aspects of a workplace injury claim, his familiarity with cases eliminates the need for repetitive investigation and duplicative services which saves clients time and money.
